The struggles in my life sure have been hard, And the way to You, Lord, seems to be barred.
To find You I have tried and tried.
No longer does it seem we are in stride.
Are You really gone forever?
Would I forsake You? .. never.
You said You are the same yesterday and today, But I can't seem to find You, to my dismay.
I thought it was You I could depend on.
N ow it seems You are gone.
I just need to feel your presence, to be lead, No more tears are left that I can shed.
Am I in this condition forever to stay, While You are somewhere else enjoying the day? Are You so involved there is no time left for me?
I need help, too, but that You must not see.
I wish You would soon return,
So Your Spirit once again would burn.
Have You really forsaken me?
Don't You remember how our relationship used to be?
I never thought I would face these things without You.
To help me I thought You were supposed to do.
I am afraid when I think I am all alone, When I think You are gone.
I am not gone as you suppose.
I have never been nearer to you than I am now.
The greatest victory is just ahead.
You aren't and never will be alone.